The Sportsman's Creed

The Player...
1. He lives clean and plays hard. He plays for the love of the game.
2. He wins without boasting, he loses without excuses and he never quits.
3. He respects officials and accepts their decisions without question.
4. He never forgets that he represents his school.

The Coach...
1. He inspires in his boys a love for the game and the desire to win.
2. He teaches them that it is better to lose fairly than to win unfairly.
3. He leads players and spectators to respect officials by setting them a good example.
4. He is the type man he wants his boys to be.

The Official...
1. He knows the rules.
2. He is fair and firm in all decisions. He calls them as he sees them.
3. He treats players and coaches courteously and demands the same treatment for himself.
4. He knows the game is for the boys, and lets them have the spotlight.

The Spectator...
1. He never boos a player or official.
2. He appreciates a good play, no matter who makes it.
3. He knows the school gets the blame or the praise for his conduct.
4. He recognizes the need for more sportsmen and fewer “sports.”

Hallmarks Of A Champion

By James A. Gordon

EDITOR'S NOTE; Those who have been closely associated with athletics, recognize that some persons bring to the field a number of the qualities which are needed for success in life. We acknowledge that these qualities can be developed through athletics by working hard at making the most of the opportunities. Some individuals possess these in greater quantities than they possess natural ability, but these qualities carry them on to success.

The 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City, despite the controversy, and occasional confusion, turned out to be a superlative spectacle which gave rise to a lot of little superlatives.

Undoubtedly the greatest single performance, and certainly the most impressive athletic feat of the Games, to say nothing of the millenium, only took about six seconds. I refer, of course, to Bob Beaman's world record long jump of 29 feet 2½ inches.

But on the other hand, after watching Al Oreter throw the discus five feet further than ever before in his career to win his fourth straight gold medal, then later hearing Payton Jordan, Coach of the United State Olympic Track and Field Squad talk about him, my nomination for the most inspiring athlete of the Games has to go to the four time gold medal winner from Islip, New York!

The qualities that make a "champion" have long been espoused and not much can be added to what already has been said, but I would like to pass on the four qualities that his Olympic coach thought made Al Oreter great.

The first was COMMITMENT. As Coach Jordan explains it, Al Oreter has a "special feeling" about the Olympic Games. 1968 was to be the "big one" for him. No other, championship meant so much. Of course, he was not the favorite for this year's Games. After all, Jay Silvester had thrown 224 feet in pre-Olympic competition. But this made no difference to Al. He had always done his best in the Olympics and he was determined to win another gold medal at Mexico, regardless of the competition.

Second was COACHABILITY. Oreter, according to his Olympic coach, reported ahead of time for final altitude training at Lake Tahoe. He was not throwing his best. "His timing was off," relates Jordan, "and he came to me and said, Coach, I need your help! Just think how this made me feel and what it did for me. Here was a three time Olympic champion, who believed he could improve, coming to me for advice. What an inspiration and satisfaction for a coach!"

Next was TOUGHNESS THAT GOES WITH COMPETITION. It was not generally known that five days before the Olympic finals in the discus, Oreter slipped in practice and pulled a muscle. So he rested completely for two days, and on the third, with his leg wrapped came back out for practice. Limiting himself to half effort on this day he threw the discus around 212 feet. This convinced him that he was

Football Rule Interpretation

A rule interpretation authorized in 1969 requires clarification. The illustration on page 15, bottom diagram, of the 1969 Simplified and Illustrated Book and plays 110 C, D and E of the current edition of the Case Book are concerned with the coverage to which reference is made. The Case Book situations of 110 C, D and E are hereby confirmed as correct. The caption for the diagram in the lower illustration on page 15 of the 1969 Football Rules – Simplified and Illustrated is incorrect. To be correct, it should read as follows: “There has been no score. The ball will be put in play at the inbounds spot on the yardline through the foremost point of the ball where it crossed the sideline.” The revision of the caption, as indicated, will correlate the coverage for the situations referred to here in both the Case Book and Simplified and Illustrated.

THE KENTUCKY HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETE FOR OCTOBER 1969

National Federation Bulletin

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE has directed the secretary to call to the membership's attention recent action of the United States Golf Association which will permit "any full-time faculty member of an educational institution to give some golf instruction as part of his duties without forfeiting amateur status." The amendment to the amateur role of the United States Golf Association was adopted early in July of this year.

PREVIOUSLY, a teacher violated his amateur status with the United States Golf Association if, under any circumstances, he gave golf instruction as part of his duties. Under the old rule, a teacher of academic subjects was permitted to give golf instruction as part of his duties only if he were hired to teach academic subjects and golf instruction was not a condition of his employment. Such a teacher could not be engaged as coach of the golf team and compensated therefore.

THE NATIONAL FEDERATION in March, 1968 requested the United States Golf Association to review the USGA amateur regulation as it affected reimbursement to a full-time faculty member who also coached interscholastic golf as part of his assignment. The National Federation pointed out that the quality of coaching would be greatly improved if the rules were amended to allow faculty members of educational institutions to give golf instruction to students and be compensated for this particular service without affecting their amateur status.

THE RULES OF AMATEUR STATUS (United States Golf Association) will include an exception to Rule 1-3 which now prohibits an amateur from receiving compensation for giving golf instruction. The exception will read as follows:

"Golf instruction may be given to students at an educational institution by a full-time faculty member, provided that the total time devoted to golf instruction comprises not more than 10 per cent of his annual teaching time. Camp counsellors who give golf instruction as part of their compensated duties are not amateur golfers."

MANY STATE ASSOCIATIONS will want to call this change in the instruction rule to the attention of their membership.

ready to go. Two days later, in spite of the pulled muscle, he reported for competition.

It rained for the finals of the discus at Mexico, and the competition dragged long. The finalists sheltered themselves under umbrellas for a while, but eventually the officials sent them to the locker room to await recall when the showers subsided. During this wait the nerves were tight. Most of the throwers paced the locker room, pawning at the floor, cursing the elements and burning up nervous energy as they waited. But not Oreter. Stretched out on a locker room bench, Al wrapped a towel around his head, and with the coolness characteristic of a three time Olympic Champion, calmly waited until he was called back to the field.

His first throw of 212 feet when competition resumed is now history. It was not his winning throw, but it might as well have been. After this, none of the other finalists came close. Al fouled on the second of his final throws and on his third, tied the Olympic record with a winning mark of 212 feet 6½ inches. But it was his first from a slippery ring with a wet discus, after the long wait, that proved his tough competitive fiber. And it won him a fourth straight gold me-
Attention, Officials!

For the first time officials are being registered in the sport of Wrestling. Registration is not yet a requirement for those who officiate in the sport, but such a requirement will probably be put into effect within the next year or two. K.I.S.S.A.A. registered officials living in the areas where Wrestling is being sponsored by the local high schools may wish to consider registration in this sport. Inquiries should be directed to the State Office of the Association.

If the telephone number is given for an official, it is the home phone number unless otherwise designated. If two numbers are given, the first number is the home phone.
